The King Sees Harvey
The Picture Changes
La Tosca and the Gunman

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921.

W. R. Hearst paid $190 for a letter written by Lord Nelson, the great English sea fighter, to his friend, Lady Emma Hamilton. The young woman had been "entertaining" the Prince of Wales, and Nelson wrote to her:

"I would have believed that you would have sent him a proper message by Sir William and sent him to hell."

The letter is worth $190. Hearst ought to facsimile it in his Sunday newspapers, that circulate more than three million copies, for the benefit of Anglomaniac snobs.

George Harvey went to see the King. The King's carriage of state, with gilding on it, and men in fancy uniforms on the horses' backs, came for Harvey, took him to the palace and brought him back. There was only one fly in that soft ointment, one crumbled rosebud in the mattress. Woodrow Wilson was not there to see Harvey on his way to Buckingham Palace, "Chosen Son Tour," as Napoleon said to the ghost of Louis Bistendy.

This has a queer sound. Officered by members of the Italian detachment, the Germans cut great holes in the ranks of the Poles with 3-inch artillery fire. ITALIAN officers are directing GERMAN soldiers shooting down POLISH troops, the Poles having seized Silesian cities in spite of the Allies. Quite a sudden change in the picture.

Some gangster in Chicago shot Anthony D'Andrea, political leader. Tucked in the band of a hat found near the man shot down was a twenty-dollar bill, and a slip marked "For flowers."

"Setting superstition, you will see, to shoot a man dead and leave money to buy flowers for the funeral. It is a very old feeling. In Sardou's play, after Sarah Bernhardt as La Tosca has derisively murdered Scarpia, stabbing him in the back with a knife, she returns to the corpse and places a lighted candle on either side of the head. Not such a difference between the Chicago gunman and La Tosca.

A man fell five stories day before yesterday, struck the ground and was "injured, not very seriously." Yesterday Jamie McKeefrey, president of the Workingmen's Board of Education, stepped up and fell to delight a man's on the sole of his shoe. He lost his balance, fell fractured his skull and died. Once upon a time this would have been said: "No man can escape his fate, we must all go on the appointed day."

Germany is considering a law to compel every married couple to rear three children. They must do that at least. Particularly healthy persons will be expected to rear nine children and will receive a bonus for every child more than three. The married lacking three children will be taxed. That's war news.

Secretary Hughes protests to the British government against certain oil fields decisions. Holland recently lost control of rich territory. Mr. Hughes will read some of the letters that Milton wrote for Cromwell when he was Cromwell's secretary, he will get good suggestions for answering such notes as that from Holland. When Cromwell said what he meant, and Milton wrote it out, the country addressed usually said, "All right, just as you say."

Financiers in Europe are quite happy about the German settlement. Here stocks are going down, and don't seem inclined to stop and go the other way. Look out for a fight among the steel men. When it comes it will be a real price war. Some gentlemen will wish they had taken the advice given in this column for the past two years, "Keep away from the little steel stocks." When his concerns are doing about 10 per cent of what they can do they are apt to fight for business.

When sailors find themselves afloat in midocean on a raft, they may begin with a gentleman's agreement, but they end, by eating each other.

Conservatism rejoices because of the news from Russia. Lenin will allow silver to be coined. Paper money has lost its value. Silver means something. Recently only paper rubles issued by the Czar, called "Romanoff rubles," have been taken by peasants.

Lenin allows peasants to trade and trade unions to fix the price that they must get, and he makes "certain concessions to the bourgeoisie."

Human beings have wanted silver and gold, have enjoyed trading and making money, for a hundred centuries. They are not going to change in a hundred days or a hundred years, either. But it doesn't mean that Lenin's government has failed.

TOOK "EYE FOR EYE" OATH

Banker's Wife Joined Beauvais' Branch of Iroquois Tribe in 1917

By International News Service

New York, May 13—Dressed in full regulation costume of the Indian Iroquois tribe from head band down to dainty moccasins, Mrs. Fred Potter Stillman became a full-fledged member of the same branch of the Indian tribe to which Fred K. Beauvais is a member, it became known today.

It happened in the fall of 1917, at a festival held at Lake Dunmore in the Green Mountains, when Mrs. Stillman, with several hundred other members of the tribe were present.

In accordance with the ancient Indian custom after she had taken the oath of allegiance, her breasts were daubed with red paint and she was then given the tribal name of Tonkamanee.

Following the usual tribal custom,

PROFESSOR CALLS EDISON TEST JUST GEOGRAPHY EXAMINATION

By HAZEL CANNING.

"A test in commercial geography almost exclusively."

This is the first comment on the Edison test of Professor Edwin M. Chamberlain, head of the Department [illegible] of Psychology of Boston University School of Business Administration.

The comment was made after Professor Chamberlain had examined numerically a large sample of the 150 questions which Thomas Edison in Edison [illegible] illustrating the amazing ignorance of college graduates, says Edison, simply at his works for positions. These questions, which needing [illegible] this and Master Scientific education, have acknowledged would [illegible] tions, were not answered satisfactorily by the many students applying

"IGNORANCE," BOTH SAY.

"Illustrating the amazing ignorance of Edison," answer each the college professors.

"College should teach a man to use mind, not train his mind with specialized facts," Professor Chamberlain explains. The professor during the war, was in charge of the army examinations, later at Camp Grant, during these eight months he compiled

The Edison tests are wrong, says Professor Chamberlain. "One answer said to me that are wrong as tests of general intelligence. I put to the young man who took them, very well not only right, but I think I believed to measure general intelligence of a group of students, could be used successfully. If a man considered intelligent, who scored other standards, then test would be wrong. This same applies to the Edison tests.

"Intelligence, in spite of the general impression of opinion, are interested. A college education, in the broadest sense, should increase intelligence. Therefore Edison's test, calling coincide with the other showing that college graduates' greatest intelligence, is all wrong. Nothing as a general intelligence test.

COULD SHOW STUDENTS FOOLS.

"There is no time when a man seeks to be more thoughtful than when he is trying to test the general intelligence of a group of people. I would make up a test, for example, loosely to the College of Business Administration and pass. By the test, the students would be all fools. Yet the students are not fools, things my test would seem to show it. In other words, the people who answer the questions in the affirmative on the test chosen by me to test a group should be the people in general, above all others, but no one in the group would possibly be able to answer all the questions, but, on the other hand, it should be one in the group the correct answer would be found on the questions [illegible] Now here, if an intelligence test should give would [illegible] the pupils were hopeless morons, not [illegible] the ordinary college student. Now they would be [illegible] my tests would be wrong. The test of intelligence test is of value unless it confirms the verdict of our tests.

IMPOSSIBLE TO MARK.

"Edison's tests cannot be marked [illegible] to right or wrong. 'Who was Cleopatra and how [illegible] she die?' You could write a volume on that. But a good question should be one that takes a short answer and can be marked right or wrong.

As a test, Edison's questions [illegible] would be a good test to measure anything. They would be good questions for editors, because we expect newspaper editors to have a wide range of general knowledge. It is a matter of fact, I think, they are very specialized that few editors could answer them, but they go too hard for right direction. [illegible] men.

"Now Edison tests are specialized information exclusively. But a proper test for general intelligence would include, besides these like Edison's, questions that would sound the human mind at every possible turn. Such questions as determine Edison's ability to follow directions, to [illegible] they would test his knowledge of proverbs, they would test his vocabulary.

"Disarranged sentences would be given to him to arrange, this, to determine his power over English construction. Some questions, called would be given him, and 'association' tests, to measure his power to see the sentence or a picture. No test of general intelligence is at all fair, which [illegible] tests the man on just one point—his general information.

PSYCHOLOGISTS DIFFER.

"The psychologists are not agreed as to what general intelligence is. Binet stressed judgment. Fishbaugh stressed ability to combine separate units of experience into a useful whole. Stern thought adaptability to new situations the important fact. General intelligence is difficult to define. Electricity, also, is difficult to define. In fact, has never been defined. But electricity has been measured. So can general intelligence be measured.

"Binet, in the beginning, we must not accept one narrow test, of one narrow function of the mind, as in the Edison tests.

"And in our testing, we generally find that the man above the best will has ever been native ability, provided he has equality of opportunity with his competitors, and puts forth, anyway, equality of effort. But the fact remains that in any mental test as to the most important factor determine what a man can do with his mind than what his mind was in the first place."

Which Test Is Better?

Here are two sets of sample questions to determine the intelligence of an individual. The Edison questions at the left, are all framed to test one thing—memory.

The test questions at the right, cited for the Boston American from the Army Alpha tests, by Professor Chamberlain of Boston University School of Business Administration, test the mind in its most important workings.

Dr. Chamberlain cites questions from the Alpha tests, which he gave to soldiers while a captain in the Army Psychological Division, which test the reasoning power, the practical judgment, the original discrimination, the arrangement of sentences, the power of analogy, the completion powers, and the general information of the student.

But general information alone, mostly of commercial geography, is all that Edison tests, in his now famous 160 questions.

EDISON:	ARMY ALPHA TESTS FOR INTELLIGENCE:
1—Where do prunes come from?	1—(To test reasoning powers.) If an aeroplane goes 250 yards in 10 seconds, how many feet does it go in a fifth of a second?
2—Of what kind of wood are axe handles made?	2—(To test practical judgment.) Shoes are made of leather because it is tanned, it is tough, pliable and warm, it can be blackened.
3—Who was Francis Marion?	3—(To test student's discrimination between words meaning the same and opposite: (S)nonym and antonym. Command, obey, masculine, feminine.
4—Bound•West Virginia.	4—(To test arrangement of sentences). Oil, water, not, and will mix.
5—Who invented logarithms?	5—(To test completion) 9 8 7 6 5 4— — 2 2 3 4 4 4— complete.
6—Who was Cleopatra?	6—(To test student's power of analogy.) Fish is to swim as man is to paper—time—walk—girl—
7—Where does shellac come from?	7—(To test general information) (a) The Rhode Island Red is a kind of horse—grain—cattle—fowl— (b) The most prominent industry of Gloucester is fishing—packing—brewing—automobiles—

FRIDAY, 13TH, BAD DAY FOR EAST BOSTON MAN

Friday, the thirteenth, was a costly day for Paul Pollo, twenty-seven years old, of No. 134 Border street, East Boston. Arraigned in the East Boston Court today, he was given a sentence of six months for carrying a revolver without a permit, and $100 for carrying a dangerous weapon, while discharging a revolver on a public street and for an additional $20. Pollo was arrested by Officers Mosca and Mercadio, who alleged that they found him on Border street discharging bullets from a 45-calibre automatic revolver. Arrested, Pollo said he had a cartridges left [illegible] with ammunition, according to police. He appealed and furnished bail of $1,000.

'NOT GUILTY,' IS LOUD'S PLEA

Handcuffed to Another Alleged Slayer, He Is Taken to Cambridge Court

Clarence W. Loud was formally arraigned before Judge Lewis A. Cox in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge today on the charge of the murder of Patrolman James A. Prentiss.

He pleaded not guilty. His wife, his sister, and his mother [illegible] Loud, were present when he was arraigned. [illegible] Loud was taken from the East Cambridge jail in company with another prisoner, Eugene R. Brady of Lowell.

Loud was dapper, cheerful, smiling. He was neatly dressed, to the last detail.

During a former [illegible] Loud with some difficulty wore a [illegible] state jail uniform, and appeared [illegible] and apparently puzzled by [illegible]

Loud was [illegible] Attorneys [illegible] and John Mahoney.

ILL HEALTH DRIVES MERCHANT TO SUICIDE

Fool "Crammers" With New Test

Edison has a brand new set of 160 questions waiting applicants for jobs at his East Orange, N. J. plant.

The "wizard" discovered that a number of would-be job holders had "crammed" on the questions he has been asking, and which have been printed broadcast in stories of papers. So he prepared a new list. Here are some of the latest puzzlers:

What number of vibrations per second do red rays of light give? Violet?

What country owns Madagascar?

Bound Idaho.

Name two locks in the Panama Canal.

In what country do orangoutang live?

Name the highest quality of bunkering coal used for steamships and what district does it come from?

What country has the greatest percentage of gypsies?

What is rame?

Who was Saladin?

What is formalspar?

What is T. N. T.?

Who was Fahre?

There are five transcontinental lines. Name them in order by starting at the southernmost one.

Where is the thyroid gland?

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS

"WHAT!" was Julian Eltinge's first remark as he walked off the stage at Keith's the other evening. "I'm half dead. Being a vampire for twenty minutes is more than being a big force of a beauty for three entire acts!"

The gasped when he appeared on the stage, a stately, beautiful woman, but after he had taken off his wig and stride across the wings in his glittering evening gown, it was hard not to realize. He seemed unattractive, but I did had to admire his nerve.

On the stage he had strolled slowly off the stage in a graceful manner, on the stage he had received his arrest of applause of the house by various curtain calls gracefully. He might have a perfect right to feel tired, but he was the minute he left them he threw off his feminine ways and became a man.

With Julian Eltinge in the mood, we had to talk about Pauline Frederick. Whatever I contemplated in the way of something to say to him, I thought of something else when I came face to face and said something else.

ABOUT PAULINE FREDERICK.

"I'm so sorry as to what's mangled in Pauline Frederick's engagement. What's the matter with Pauline Frederick's engagement? I don't see her, even when I'm passing her dressing room door. I saw her similar allusions at the St. Regis and she talked quite a bit about William Morris. She was very nice and said she'd invited me to her home, but I'm not interested in the what's its name."

"She was a corker, and they were going to make a picture of her life. I'm going to make a picture of my life before I quit stage life. When I saw the announcement of Pauline Frederick in the paper, I was staggered. She was not on the contract, and I've been under the impression that she was engaged to a man out there, a man connected with the motion picture end of the business. I was going to ask him about it, though."

He paused and looked inquiringly at me. "Really?" he said. "Tell me about the films."

STILL PALING.

"Please," he looked disappointed, "I'm going to make a settle more. The stage out in Hollywood was the sort that worried about draperies and things. It was always a case of 'let me get this' or 'let me get that' and I'm sure for your sake I'm going to hide a few things for myself—and quite a number of people I'd like to hide from right now. Hollywood!"

He waited. He did it. Then he took a deep breath and said in a flash:

"This is my last week in vaudeville. I leave for New York tomorrow to make the final arrangements for my new pictures. I shall be in Hollywood by the first of June to start shooting. The first will be a screen version of my stage play, 'The Fascinating Widow.' Then I shall do four others, among them 'The Pretty Mrs. Smith.' Yes, I like the Mrs. Smith' better than the stage."

AND THURSDAYS OFF.

"We're going to see a lot of each other, I'm afraid, in the next [illegible] months, so let me tell you [illegible] That will show us the going under the [illegible] what I intend to do to a certain extent to see the effect myself."

He looked wonderingly at me. It [illegible] there. Julian Eltinge and [illegible] Thursdays off! And now [illegible] dressing-room, which is [illegible]

MARY HAY NOW.

IT'S surprising how the movie players have to hospital life. Bessie Barriscale is just out of the hospital, Mabel Ballin is still there for an operation, Betty Compson is ill with the measles, Bessie Barriscale is recovering from tonsilitis. And now Mary Hay has followed suit. She is in the Brigham and Peter Bent Brigham at the Lower Hospital in New York, where she is having the tonsils removed. She comes great deal of laughter. She sends her regards to all about the same time Bathsheba does.

FROM WALLACE REID, JR.

WALLACE HEID, Sr., was having a rough and tumble affair with Wallace, Jr., the other day. The idea of this game, according to Wallace, Jr., was to put a pillow under your shirt, look fierce and then jump energetically on your father. Wallace, Jr., was quite serious about this, small son, in the fellow stuck his face and pummeled him across the floor. He came up with dignity and remarked to his mother:

"Now Daddy's getting rough."

EDISON COMPANY DIVIDENDS REVEAL EXTORTIONATE PROFITS

GIRLS AGREE OLD-FASHIONED SPANKING DID THEM GOOD

Whipping children is brutal. Whipping children is not brutal. When you spare the rod you spoil the child. When you use the rod you spoil the child.

Such are the conflicting beliefs on this question of punishing children.

Several interesting letters on the subject are printed below. What do you think? In writing in, address your communication to Training Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

GLAD SHE WAS WHIPPED AT 10.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I believe in boys and girls being whipped when they deserve it. I am exactly years old and was never whipped until I was sixteen, and I am a different girl since. I used to come in at all hours of the night and do as I pleased. Finally my father and mother decided that I should not act like a big girl long would no longer treat me like one. I was punished and the treatment was repeated until I started to act.

GLAD SHE WAS WHIPPED AT 10.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I believe in boys and girls being whipped when they deserve it. I am twenty years old and was never whipped until I was nineteen, but I was a different girl entirely. I used to come in at all hours of the night and get as I pleased. Finally my father and mother decided that I could not get by that way any longer, but one whipping was enough. I was reformed, and the treatment was repeated until I learned to obey.

REFORMED.

Somerville.

WHIPPINGS MAKE CRIMINALS.

Training Editor, Boston American:

In the majority of cases I will show you that the man who had the good pounded out of him when he was a boy never grows to commit some of the offenses that criminals and are not punished. But the little open-minded child has got licked in the world long enough to gain discretion and is therefore beaten by indignant parents.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS A FATHER.

WOULD WHIP DANCE VAMPS.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I do not believe in whipping small children. But I believe whipping is needed for many girls of seventeen or more who, with a fairly normal and cheerful mind and disposition, turn into dance hall vampires, are interested only in "follows," wear their dress under a thin coating of paint and affect ultra modern ideas.

Boston. INTERESTED.

FAVORS WHIPPING FOR SNOBS.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I think boys need whipping more than girls do now. Boys who live over the tenements, and go when they please, come to school when they are ready, turn into newsboys. Too many mothers spoil their sons. The school, combining those one needs everywhere are products of such a system. Beating when they were young would have helped many of them. OLD TIMER.

HAS AWAY AFTER WHIPPING.

Training Editor, Boston American:

Just a few lines to let you know what I think of parents who whip children. When I was fifteen years old my father whipped me for the last time. I left home and went with a circus. I left the circus when I learned it was going to play the home town and joined the navy. I have never been home since and I never will go home while my father is living. I am twenty-three years old but I am not able to forgive him. I would like to write to my mother, but he would see the letter and I would get what I deserved. I will not tell the children. I will be satisfied by mental punishment.

SPANKING DID HER GOOD.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I am a girl of eighteen years. Until I was fifteen I was never spanked. My mother used to scold me and look me up in my room as punishment. When I got angry, I pounded and went out, returning at midnight. When I got spanked, I ran away. From that time on my mother stopped scolding me and I soon decided that it was time I began my course and went home.

DORCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL GIRL.

STRAP SUBSTITUTE FOR CANE.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I read with interest some letters and articles on whipping children. I was one of seven children, and I can say that with my aunt and uncle. Neither of them has ever laid a hand on me. My aunt reasons with me when I do wrong. She also punishes me by depriving me of pleasures. But most of all, she is not lazy, and gives me my belongings as I ought to have them. I do not believe in whipping, and go so far as to say that I am not afraid to live with kids and girls who are constantly getting whipped for every petty offense. I think the strap is a substitute for honest parental care.

Portland.

WHIP WHEN ADVICE FAILS.

Training Editor, Boston American:

I believe in the efficacy of whipping, but only after advice has been tried and found wanting. There is no reason for whipping if there are no results. Parents should not whip children in a fit of temper because too many times it is misplaced. Too many parents use whipping as a substitute for brains.

Worcester.

PUNISH CHILDREN EARLY.

Training Editor, Boston American:

To parents would-be readers of this column: Punish your children early, before they are twelve years old, for wrongdoing. Do not wait until they are fifteen or sixteen years old, for many times afterward. I was brought up a gentleman, spoiled child. When I was thirteen I went to live with my aunt. She spanked me when I needed it. My last whipping was when I was eighteen. I should think an infant when it would have grown up an old popular and prominent.

SIXTY.

Bellflower street, Lawrence.

WHIPPING DUE TO IGNORANCE.

Training Editor, Boston American:

My advice to those who rule good discipline, the rod and all that sort, is: "study the human brain." Whipping a child is due to ignorance and lack of self control, coupled with not for themselves what is right and wrong. Their manners are based on the manners of their parents, words, each other. The fowler almost parents undertake the training of children when it is too late. I have two boys and a girl. The youngest is four. So far as I am informed you training is given a child to teach him the day or way from. How I did ——— EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

Mean Thief Steals Girl's Bicycle

The meanest thief stole the new bicycle of seventeen-year-old Geraldine Wyman of No. 21 Common street, which she planned to ride in the Boston American social run next Sunday the saddest part of the incident is that she had not completed payments on the bike.

She left it in front of the Elk Building while she went in side on an errand. Returning five minutes later the machine was gone.

The bicycle is a boy's model Rising Meteor. It is numbered 37244. The bell was fastened to the frame instead of the handle bar. Miss Wyman is sorry to lose it, but is happy over her loss as she had her heart set on taking part in the Boston American run.

We've Just Been Reading Where

Sec. Hoover Says:

That there's no use investigating retail prices any further; that some retailers have already liquidated, cleaned house, taken their losses and got down to the new normal basis. And Herb. says, sezze, that the thing for the public to do is to go shopping around and compare prices.

That's just what we've always urged people to do—shop around and compare our goods and our prices with anything they can find elsewhere. We thrive on comparisons, for they substantiate our claim to greater value-giving.

It won't take you very long to decide which store will serve you best this season, for here you'll find only NEW merchandise---attractive, finely tailored, of known quality---all selling at the NEW low prices---right down to hardpan.

For Instance, Here Are the Famous

Kuppenheimer Suits

Selling at $35, $40, $45, $50

You couldn't ask for any finer clothes than these, nor get them if you did. For years Kuppenheimer style has set the pace for America, and Kuppenheimer quality in materials and workmanship has set a new high standard in clothes making. Nowhere else will you find suits which even pretend to be in the Kuppenheimer class selling at such modest prices.

Other Suits at $25 & $30

We personally selected the fabrics and specified exactly how these suits should be made. They're the best suits that $25 and $30 will buy anywhere.

Golf Suits at $35 & $40

Combination of coat, knickerbockers and long trouser, giving you really two suits in one. They come in sporty tweeds and cassimeres in appropriate patterns.

White Flannels at $8.50 per pair

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and not mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Have You Tried It?

Everybody has read the above headline; how many believe it? Have you a little-one in the home, and has that dear little mite when its stomach was not just right felt the comforts that come with the use of Fletcher's Castoria? You have heard the cry of pain. Have you heard them cry for Fletcher's Castoria? Try it.

Just help baby out of its trouble tomorrow with a taste of Castoria. Watch the difference in the tone of the cry, the look in the eye, the wiggle in the tiny fingers. The transformation is complete—from pain to pleasure. Try it.

You'll find a wonderful lot of information about Baby in the booklet that is wrapped around every bottle of Fletcher's Castoria.

A Message to the Public and the Motion Picture Exhibitors of America

PHOTOPLAYS, exactly like magazines, books, newspapers, and other publications and productions which appeal to public appreciation and satisfy public taste, are built upon a careful study of the public's requirements, and a persistent effort to supply those needs through the medium of the highest talent in every step and stage of development.

Achievement is not haphazard; an individual accomplishment may be, but continued accomplishment always is, and always will be, the result of careful and competent organization, system and management.

The plain facts seem fully to justify the assertion that Cosmopolitan Productions have scored more successful pictures than any other producing organization in the moving picture business—possibly more than all the other moving picture organizations combined—during the brief period of a little over a year in which Cosmopolitan Productions have been operating as a moving picture making company.

Chance might have made one "Humoresque," but chance would not have followed it with a "World and His Wife," a "Restless Sex," a "Heliotrope," an "Inside of the Cup," a "Buried Treasure," and a "Straight Is the Way."

Nor would chance produce the "Proxies," "The Wild Goose," "The Woman God Changed," "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," "The Bride's Play," and other productions to be seen this fall—other masterpieces of the moving picture art which are already created and on their way to successful release.

This brief article is to present to moving picture exhibitors and to the public the system and organization by which these great successes have been made and by which even greater successes will surely and continuously be made and presented for the edification and enjoyment of the public.

The system is simple. Get the best in moving picture material, in direction, in photography, in scenes and sets, in everything from the initial story through the scenario treatment, the staging, acting and production, down to the ultimate cutting, titling and editing.

In every department of activity in the world there are many that are good but only one that is best. The sincere and unceasing effort of Cosmopolitan Productions has been to associate those that are best in every phase of moving picture making in the creation of its photoplays.

Undoubtedly and undeniably the best authors in the world write for the Cosmopolitan Magazine and its associated magazines.

Cosmopolitan Productions

In the United States, in England, and in all the European countries, the fiction market is combed and practically controlled to furnish the highest quality of entertaining fiction for this group of magazines.

This entertaining and educational material—for it is instructive in the highest degree in its literary quality and in its ethical purpose—is turned over to Cosmopolitan Productions to be translated into moving pictures.

Here directors of the highest reputation, of acknowledged genius and established excellence are employed to superintend and direct the film production.

The writer of many successful plays and a man who was lately the Editor of one of America's greatest weeklies, is in charge of the Scenario Department.

One of the greatest scenic directors and scenic designers in the world devotes all his time to the general conception and detailed execution of the Cosmopolitan Productions.

And so through every department and every detail of every department, to a degree that it would only weary you to recite, super-excellence prevails; and it can only maintain its place by constantly surpassing its super-excellence.

No one individual is responsible for the perfection of Cosmopolitan Productions; but all heads of all departments contribute their full share from the able editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine all the way through to the administrative head, who employs the vast publicity of the Hearst publications for the promotion of the finished picture, and its introduction in the most effective way to the attention of the whole American public from Massachusetts to Georgia and from New York to California.

Everywhere every power and every agency work hand in hand for the highest success in production and exploitation.

And there are no engines in the United States or in the world more powerful and more far-reaching than the engines of collection, construction and distribution which the Cosmopolitan Productions control.

To phrase it in terms of trade, the raw material in fiction form is gathered from all quarters of the earth, is manufactured with the highest art and skill and is advertised and exploited by the greatest agencies of publicity which exist today.

All this makes for success. It means success. It compels success.

And as the various cogs of the great machine come to run more and more smoothly through practice and closer contact, it will mean still greater success—a success which we trust you will share and enjoy.

YALE IS EXPECTED TO WIN MEET FROM HARVARD

By CHARLES E. PARKER

The Yales have it.

At least so it would seem after a consideration of the respective individual records made in last Saturday's meets, but Yale's potential margin over Harvard in tomorrow's annual dual meet at the Yale Bowl is much less than many Elis had counted upon, and it would require but two or three upsets in Harvard's favor to give the meet a decidedly Crimson aspect.

The meet tomorrow looms as one of the most attractive duels ever conducted by these ancient rivals. Entered in the events are a number of the topnotch athletes of the nation, several of whom were members of the recent Olympic team, and others whose record marks if made last summer surely would have won the Olympic berths.

[illegible] records of the Crimson thinclads as the high point mentor of the month and both are looking for [illegible] meet. Yale has performed at just about the same pace for a total of 15 points. Had it been possible to conduct the meet on the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the broad jump, and it is not unlikely that he will get a new dual meet record in the last-named event.

Yale comes to the front in the middle distances and in the two-mile run, and should Tommy Campbell run as well as Percy Hedley, the last-named is certain to win, but [illegible] rather than [illegible] Yale's captain. Harvard, however, is more experienced [illegible] Yale's captain. Harvard, however, is more experienced [illegible] Yale's captain. Harvard, however, is more experienced

SHE [illegible] Frank, hastily, and [illegible] Manners [illegible] Frank. You've had a dreadful shock, and you're bewildered. Your mind is working in a selfish channel, but that's mere accident and incidental to the shock. I've punished you enough this time that things were going wrong with Diana, and you, so in my case shock has been distributed, and I'm not worrying [illegible] about either of you. Don't you see that it doesn't really matter how much Diana is hurt?"

"She has had her chance and she has abused it. And it doesn't really matter how much you are hurt. You are a man. As for Fern, the more I see of her the better. She will have to [illegible] for a long time. You have been against her."

"If you have made messes of your lives, you [illegible] yourselves to blame. Diana has been too selfish. You have been too indulgent. And [illegible] Let's not consider Fern. Don't punish Fern; don't make me suffer. Suffer—and get the most out of life that you can. Diana, I'm afraid, won't take the life of an innocent, helpless person, nor has no say in the matter so long as you don't arrange that person's life for the worse.

"Both you and Diana are necessary to me. Tom and the food she eats. No matter how much Diana suffers, you will always be good to Tom, and good for Tom. It will always be the same with you. Don't argue this with Diana, she wouldn't see it now. But she'll ever let it out of your mind. Stick to it. Even if Diana went completely wrong in [illegible] better to keep her for Tom's sake."

"Everything I try to argue with her," said Manners dismally, "she interprets [illegible] to suit herself. She says that if she wished to [illegible] she will die or kill herself."

"Only the running away with [illegible]," said Mary Hastings, comfortably. "And he's [illegible] and [illegible] would be considered scrupulous. And [illegible] Men will only abandon [illegible] Men will only abandon [illegible] that way so [illegible] no other way out."

"I've had men don't like the idea of running away with married women. The [illegible] does happen. But they won't like it; it amounts to being found out. They would always be discreet and hope not to be found out."

Plenty of Laughter

"Then [illegible] said Manners. "I've talked with him, and I think he's a pretty decent sort. He is [illegible] and he's [illegible] I don't [illegible] Has there been much talk?"

"Here laughter than talk. Nobody [illegible] and [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] People are not laughing at [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's [illegible] Fern's

Do Not Destroy a Great Instrument for Conveying Information and Thought. Good Taste Can Be Preserved Without Prepublicity Censorship

The censorship of the moving pictures has been denounced by the most distinguished Americans.

President Taft refused to approve of an ordinance establishing a censorship in the District of Columbia.

President Wilson, speaking to a delegation at Shadow Lawn in 1916, declared that censorship was contrary to the genius of American institutions.

Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President in 1916, and now Secretary of State, has vigorously opposed censorship as contrary to the spirit of our institutions.

President Harding has been even more vigorous in his opposition to this attack upon the essential thing that the fathers sought to protect when they forbade, in the Constitution of the United States and of all the States, the law-making power to abridge the freedom of the press.

Congress has constantly refused to pass a national censorship law, although the work of those who have advocated national censorship has been persistent.

This bill violates the most elementary principles of free speech and free press, because it muzzles the very thing in speaking and writing that the forefathers thought to protect when they wrote into the Constitution of the United States and into the Constitutions of all the States that the law-making power should never attempt to control the freedom of the press and of the spoken word.

What our forefathers meant to do was to make sure that the instruments of conveying information and thought were left absolutely free from the control of the government. For these, of course, must be the instruments by which the action of the government is criticized and by which information concerning the government's action can be conveyed to the citizens to aid them in forming their judgment concerning the government and the questions which they must decide in the democratic conduct of their public affairs.

There cannot be any doubt that if the moving picture had been known to the fathers that they would have included the moving picture in the protection given to speaking and writing. Indeed, no fair man can deny that the protection given to speaking and writing really extends to moving pictures, for a moving picture exhibition today is practically a newspaper, only it presents the story and the news to you entirely through the eye, instead of presenting it to you partly through the eye and partly through writing. The moving picture gives you the news of the world in pictorial form, and it presents in the most powerful way of all, arguments for or against questions of public moment. Governments of the world have recognized the tremendous power for influencing public opinion contained in the moving picture, and that is the power which the forefathers sought to protect when they gave constitutional protection to the newspapers and to all discussions. More than 20,000,000 people see the moving picture every day. Its appeal to them is far stronger than any other kind of appeal. They see it all, they are paying attention to it all, and it presents its appeal to them under circumstances which command for the appeal the greatest possible mental concentration.

For this reason, the governments of the world have admitted that the moving pictures were among the most powerful, if not the most powerful, agencies for developing and maintaining the morale of the people during the war. The French government has publicly admitted that the moving picture in France was one of the instrumentalities which saved France by stimulating and maintaining French morale.

Even if some of the moving pictures were as objectionable to the moral sensibilities of our people as those who advocate censorship claim, and even if the censorship proposed were calculated to purge the moving pictures, it would be paying too high a price for the purging to violate what probably is the most fundamental of the safeguards of democracy.

For fifteen years the lobby of nearly every legislature in the country has been infested by sincere and insincere advocates of censorship who have lobbied to consummate this attack on the freedom of the press. In all these fifteen years, in forty-eight States, they have succeeded in but four States. The success of the scheme in these four States has not led any other States in the neighborhood to follow their example. How different is the progress of censorship of the moving picture from the progress of the Initiative and Referendum which has spread rapidly by its good example from one State to another, fairly flowing over the State boundaries in all directions into the neighboring States.

In not a single instance has censorship obtained the results promised when the law was enacted in these four States.

Censorship is not only un-American and dangerous in principle, but it is a failure in practice, giving only the producer and exhibitor of the pictures annoyance and expense which the theatre-going public have to pay in the end.

But the bill now before the Senate is far worse than any censorship bill which was ever passed in any State. How any honest advocate of censorship can support such a bill passes all understanding. While in the other four States which have adopted censorship a board or commission comprised of a number of officials are given the power to suppress or change pictures and otherwise to tell the public what they may and may not see, this bill before the Senate proposes to give the power to one policeman, and he cannot delegate that power to anybody else.

And this absurd bill provides that this solitary policeman shall pass on all pictures which are to be exhibited in this State. He is to tell the people of Massachusetts what they are fit to see and what is fit to be seen by them in all the seven hundred theatres of the State. These theatres require over twelve thousand moving pictures a week. Now, no mortal man can view for the purpose of censoring more than two hundred reels a week. What does this mean? Of course, it means either that the censorship itself will be a farce or that most of the moving picture theatres will have to close.

Is the Senate willing to make a scrap of paper of the Constitution of the United States and of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts by violating that provision of the Constitution which prohibits our legislatures from abridging the freedom of the press; and do they want to attack this great principle of democracy with a bill so badly drawn that it will make a farcical censorship or close down the theatres?

Do the honest advocates of moving picture censorship themselves court this absurd dilemma?

More Truth Than Poetry

The Core of Importance

By S. E. KISER

IT makes a lot of difference who says or does a thing;
Mike Murphy says that Ireland should be set free this Spring;
"Let England understand," says Mike, "that her misrule must cease;
She never can be free from shame till Ireland has peace!"
Few people pay attention when Mike thus explains his views,
But gosh! what if those words were said by Secretary Hughes?

BOB JONES is not inclined to think the outlook very bright;
"I fear," he says, "that we shall not soon see things going right.
The world is all turned upside down; there's trouble everywhere;
You'll see, before the year is past, confusion and despair!"
Few people give a second thought to what is said by Bob,
But what if his dark prophecy were made by Charley Schwab?

WHEN Willie Steele, a messenger, picks off a bunch of kale
They raise a rumpus and proceed to rush the kid to jail;
But Cheatum, Crook & Company, the rich contracting firm,
Knock down two million from the State and get no prison term;
Their lawyers puncture every charge that any one may bring—
It makes a lot of difference who says or does the thing.

SO it has been since Noah's time, so it will be forever;
If Chesterton had written this, I'll bet you'd think it clever.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

A YOUNG man
CALLED ME on the phone
AND SAID to me
"I'M THE secretary
OF THE Y. M. H. A.
"AND WE wanted to know
"IF ON Thursday night
"YOU WOULD talk to us,
"AT OUR monthly meeting."
AND I said to say no.
BUT HE was insistent.
AND I said I would
AND I asked a young lady
WHO WAS writing my letters
WHAT SORT of a club
WAS THE Y. M. H. A.
AND SHE asked some one
AND THEN informed me
THEY WERE young Hibernians.
AND IT got to be Thursday
AND LATE in the day
I SAT me down.
AND GOT a book.
ON THE Irish race.
AND TRIED to find out.
WHERE THE word Hibernian
FIRST CAME from
THE WHICH I did.
AND AFTER that
GOT ANOTHER book.
WITH STORIES in it.
OF IRISH wit
AND PICKED out some
AND MADE brief notes
AND FINALLY,
I PLANNED my talk
AND HURRIED away
TO WHERE it was
THE YOUNG men met,
AND I was shown
BY A man at the door
THROUGH A side hall entrance
TO A little stage
AND INTRODUCED,
TO A dark young man
OF HEBRAIC cast.
AND WAS then led out
AND ON to the stage.
AND INTRODUCED.
TO ALL the members
OF THE Young Men's Hebrew Association.
AND IF there's anybody
WANTS AN Irish speech,
THAT'S NEVER been used
THEY'RE WELCOME to it.

I THANK you.
